

Product announcement SPUR Omega X, the world's finest-grained sharpness developer

We are now offering the new SPUR Omega X developer. This is a completely new development. This innovative developer is characterized by a revolutionary improvement in fine-grainedness combined with maximum sharpness. This was possible due to the implementation of an extremely high detail contrast, which was previously not considered possible in this form for a fine grain developer.

The quality of normal black and white films is therefore raised to a previously unattainable level with this developer.

It is also very interesting that the quality improvement achieved with SPUR Omega X is much more significant with the cheaper conventional emulsions than with the expensive T-crystal emulsions. This results in a leveling of quality, which means that with some cheaper films you can achieve a quality that was previously only possible with T-crystal films.

Many greetings to all SW fans
Your Heribert Schain